HAWALIAN WEATHER

Sidney Jordan and two visiting friends from the Colonies-Horace and Bress-returned Thursday George evening from a camping expedition to Kaukuonahua stream, which lies on the other side of Wahlawa. Sid. was going to do the grand act and show his friends the country, take them over Wahiawa plantation, etc. and the three young men started off in a buggy with a tent and numerous camping traps. Their plans were cruelly nipped audiences at the Orpheum and last in the bud, however, for when they night the attendance was not only came to Kaukuonahua stream it be-triple that of previous evenings, but veryone was highly pleased with the if it was going to stop soon the tent was put up and the trio went into

It rained all day and it rained all night and then it rained all the next day and then all the night after that The unhappy trio sulked in their tent tion down town, was awakened an hour and large volumes of tobacco amoke and a half ahead of time to satisfy the and sulphurous imprecations floated requests of the audience for the peras the gentlemen from North Queensland and not "Sidney ducks," they were not able to stir outside and Sidney Jordan's two days' lecture course on the Paradise of the Pacific was viewed with no marked enthusiasm.

The last part of the loke remains When the rain finally ceased and the unhappy trio set out for home, they had not gone more than a mile when they found that the ground was per feetly dry and showed that no rain whatever had fallen there.

The vagaries of the Hawaiian rainstorm need no explanation. Sid and his friends had simply camped in perpetual rain shower for two days when they would have been high and dry by going a mile away.

Sidney is at present blessing the prevalling winds which are materially aiding him in drying out his numerous drenched effects.
